Adwait Sharad More is a motivated sophomore at Arizona State University, majoring in Computer Science with a perfect GPA of 4.0. He has a strong foundation in programming languages, including Python, Java, and C++, and is passionate about data analysis and technology's intersection with real-world problems. Adwait has gained valuable experience through various internships and leadership roles, demonstrating his commitment to academic excellence and personal growth.

He has been actively involved in projects focused on communication skills and medical adherence, showcasing his dedication to impactful research. Adwait is particularly interested in sustainability and innovation, as evidenced by his desire to participate in programs like Future17, which align with his goals of making a positive difference in the world. In his free time, he enjoys exploring new technologies, engaging in creative problem-solving, and fostering collaborative learning experiences.